Conversational Hour February 5th, 2008

On Tuesday February 5th, 2008, the American Corner Tetovo continued with the regular sessions of the Conversational hour. It seems that day by day sessions are getting more popular and the number of the participants grows every time. This session attended 10 participants and together with the Peace Corps Volunteer Ana Schafer, they discussed actively about the culture in our community, how do they understand the culture, what makes it. Since the participants were both Macedonians and Albanians they explained what makes these cultures different and what makes them similar. This was a very positive way to bring people together, to learn and respect different cultures. The Volunteer Ana spoke about diversities in the American culture and the participant had the opportunity to learn something more about the mixture in this field there.
